

GLOBAL WORKS STAFF BIOS

LAUREN GETTE-KING - Washington, DC Program Director & Global Works Program Lead

Raised in the rugged landscapes of rural Alaska, Lauren developed an appreciation for exploration that extends beyond the outdoors. Now residing in Missoula, Montana, Lauren is passionate about sharing her love for travel and culture with students of all ages. She holds a B.A. in Languages and a Master of Public Health with a focus on Global Health. With experience teaching Spanish to K-12 and university students, she transitioned to immersive & experiential education in 2018. She has led over 40 student programs across the U.S., Europe, Latin America, and the Caribbean. As a Program Lead, she loves helping students enhance their language skills while tackling engaging projects. She believes that travel deepens our understanding of humanity and broadens our perspectives, helping young people to explore their role in the global community. Lauren will meet you upon arrival in DC and will travel with you throughout the program.

NAHELY NEGRON - Global Works Program Lead

Nahely is an avid adventurer, polyglot and world traveler. She tries to balance her time between exploring other countries and spending time at home in the beautiful island of Puerto Rico, where she was born and raised. In 2013 she had the opportunity to participate in a GW program which turned out to be a pivotal experience in her life. Eventually, she studied Languages (Portuguese & French) and Social Work in the University of Puerto Rico (Río Piedras Campus) where she managed to combine her passions for community work and interpersonal relationships. In order to do so, Nahely has worked with organizations like Comedores Sociales de Puerto Rico, that strive to eradicate hunger in the island through solidarity and mutual aid. Solo traveling is another one of her greatest passions, and you can always find her at a beach near you. She thrives while seeking new adventures and being part of a community. Nahely will meet you upon arrival in DC and will travel with you throughout the program.
